Re: Record Search Results for BREA-03.1, Berry Street and Mercury Lane in the City of Brea

The South Central Coastal Information Center received your records search request for the project area referenced above, located on the La Habra, CA USGS 7.5' quadrangle. The following summary reflects the results of the records search for the project area and a 1-mile radius. The search includes a review of all recorded archaeological and built-environment resources as well as a review of cultural resource reports on file. In addition, the California Points of Historical Interest (SPHI), the California Historical Landmarks (SHL), the California Register of Historical Resources (CAL REG), the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP), and the California State Historic Properties Directory (HPD) listings were reviewed for the above referenced project site and a 1-mile. Due to the sensitive nature of cultural resources, archaeological site locations are not released.

HISTORIC MAP REVIEW - Anaheim, CA (1896, 1942) 15' USGS historic maps indicate that in 1896 there was no visible development within the project area. There were six roads, one building, three intermittent streams and the historic place name of Brea Canyon located within the project search radius. In 1942, there was little to no visible change within the project area. However, the search radius appeared to have been developed extensively. The previously mentioned streams appear to have been rerouted and there were several additional roads and buildings. Major road names include Central Avenue, Brea Canyon Road, Brea Olinda Boulevard. The Pacific Electric rail way was located north of the project area and the Brea Reservoir was located to the south. The historic place name of Brea Canyon remained.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Although the project occurs in an area where the surface and subsurface appears to have been previously disturbed, there is still potential for the discovery of prehistoric or historic cultural resources within the project boundaries. Therefore, a halt-work condition should be in place for all ground disturbing activities. In the event that any evidence of cultural resources is encountered, all work within the vicinity of the find should stop until a qualified archaeologist can be retained to assess such finds and make recommendations. Excavation of potential cultural resources should not be attempted by project personnel. It is also recommended that any historic structures (45 years and older) within the project area be identified, recorded, and evaluated for local, state, or national significance prior to the approval of project plans if required by the lead agency. Finally, the Native American Heritage Commission should be consulted to identify if any additional traditional cultural properties or other sacred sites are known to be in the area.

For your convenience, you may find a professional consultant* at www.chrisinfo.org. Any resulting reports by the qualified consultant should be submitted to the South Central Coastal Information Center as soon as possible.

Due to processing delays and other factors, not all of the historical resource reports and resource records that have been submitted to the Office of Historic Preservation are available via this records search. Additional information may be available through the federal, state, and local agencies that produced or paid for historical resource management work in the search area. Additionally, Native American tribes have historical resource information not in the California Historical Resources Information System (CHRIS) Inventory, and you should contact the California Native American Heritage Commission for information on local/regional tribal contacts.

The California Office of Historic Preservation (OHP) contracts with the California Historical Resources Information System's (CHRIS) regional Information Centers (ICs) to maintain information in the CHRIS inventory and make it available to local, state, and federal agencies, cultural resource professionals, Native American tribes, researchers, and the public. Recommendations made by IC coordinators or their staff regarding the interpretation and application of this information are advisory only. Such recommendations do not necessarily represent the evaluation or opinion of the State Historic Preservation Officer in carrying out the OHP's regulatory authority under federal and state law.
